

To whom it may concern

Ms is a patient of [department name] based at [hospital name] for management of her subglottic stenosis.

Ms 's condition puts her in a high-risk category during the current COVID-19 pandemic. If she is to contract the virus she will be at risk of developing a respiratory complication. This will be compounded by the fact that, if the need arises, intubation will very difficult in her case.

Our current advice to all airway stenosis patients is to work from home for the next three months.

Failing that, the employer should take all reasonable steps to reduce the clinical risk including providing the appropriate personal protection equipment (PPE), moving the employee away from frontline high-risk area and or to consider utilising their skills in alternative roles that carry less risk of exposure.

I am most grateful for your urgent consideration and assistance.

Kind regards
